BANDITS HOLD FIVE CAPTIVE WHEN SEEN LOOTING OHIO BANK

Two Menace Men In Barber Shop While Pals Work Four Hours To Crack Galena Bank Safe; Escape With $200 To $300 In Silver

GALENA, O., Feb. 25.—Holding five men captive in a barber shop, for four hours, safe-crackers blew open the outer vault of the bank of Galena Company here today, and escaped with loot, which was estimated at $200 to $300 in small silver.

It was the fourth attempt to rob the bank within the past year.

The robbers were noticed by the five men in the barber shop and the bandits saw their five spectators about the same time. Two of the gunmen stood guard outside the bank and covered the five men while their companions worked feverishly to blow the safe. They were unable to blow the inner vault of the bank where the bulk of the cash was deposited.

There were four robbers, according to the witnesses. The five men who were held captive in the small shop are T. P. Hamer, Kenneth Platt, Ralph Watts, Charles Franklin and Carl Cunningham, all of Galena.

"They made no threats, but they knew we were there and we did not dare move," one of the men told police.

The blast exploded with a small charge and the noise was muffled. None of the residents was awakened by the explosion, as far as learned.

There were four robbers, according to the witnesses. The five men who were held captive in the small shop are T. P. Hamer, Kenneth Platt, Ralph Watts, Charles Franklin and Carl Cunningham, all of Galena.

HOSPITAL IN PANIC AS GUNMAN PATIENT SHOT BY GANGSTERS

Three Put Underworld Leader "On Spot" In Private Room

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—The quiet sanctuary of German Deaconess Hospital was transformed into a frenzy of terrified patients in a furious gun battle today when three gangsters tried to murder Frank McErland, notorious underworld character, as he lay in his sick bed.

Night-time quiet prevailed throughout the large hospital as the three gunmen crept unnoticed through a fire escape window into McErland's private room to carry out the gangland pact to put the gangster "on the spot."

Terrified patients cried out in alarm as the blazing guns broke the quiet.

McErland, fearing such an attempt, whipped a revolver from beneath his pillow and gave the invaders a furious battle although he himself was riddled with three bullets which may cause death. Propped up on his sickbed, McErland blazed away with such telling effect that the gunmen fled.

Doctors rushing into McErland's room after the duel found the gangster still waving his pistol, his right leg encased in a cast and suspended grotesquely by weights and pulleys.

Still firing and brandishing revolvers and shotguns, the three assassins raced through the main corridor, terrorizing nurses, doctors and internes who watched helplessly.

The crash of the shots, fast as automatics could fire, aroused screams of panic among nurses and patients. It was hours before the mystified patients could be reassured and quieted.

The purpose of the invaders was to "finish a job" which they started a month ago when McErland was shot in the leg. That he expected such an attempt is indicated by the loaded pistol he kept close at hand, which nurses never discovered and with which he repelled the entire group.

Until arrival of detectives it was not known that the wounded man was a gangster at all. He appeared on the records as "Charles Miller." He had explained the gun shot wound in his leg as an accident suffered while cleaning his revolver.

"I always slept with a gun under my pillow," he had said then—but McErland, known as "one of the toughest," did not tell them he had the gun under his pillow.

McErland has long enjoyed the reputation of being the most dangerous and cleverest of Chicago gangsters. Even at the point of death, he would have nothing to say to detectives. Questions only brought sneers.

"Didn't you know this was a private affair," he challenged. "I'll handle it myself if I don't die—and if I do die there won't be any need of handling it."

McErland has been connected with a number of gang killings. He has also been suspected of a number of wanton killings of inoffensive citizens, according to police.

At the conclusion of the hearing, which was largely attended, the question of whether Lieut. Kenneth W. Dice, driver of the fire truck, was guilty of negligence, and whether the city is under a "moral obligation" if not legally liable to pay damage claims arising from the accident, was taken under advisement by Manager Smith.

The collision, it was generally agreed, occurred when the Seagrave pumper, returning to the garage house from the scene of a blaze at the residence of W. E. Crawford, 688 S. Detroit St., swerved to the wrong side of the street, drove across the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossing in front of a westbound freight train, and collided with an auto which was moving up to the crossing from the opposite side. Paul Galliger, son of Patrick Galliger, 40 Leaman St., driver of the car, escaped injury, but his sister, Ruth, 22, and Miss Anna Rachford, 18, S. Detroit St., also occupants of the machine, were injured.

Dr. A. B. Kester, N. King St., dentist, driver, and Arthur Garfield, an occupant of an auto which was traveling south behind the Galliger machine at the time of the accident, both testified that the roadster was on its correct side of the street and that the rear end of the truck swung around and hit the auto at a point about eighty feet from the crossing, the force of the impact making the runabout rebound fifteen feet against a telephone pole. Neither could estimate the speed of the truck but both declared that no part of the Galliger car was across the center of the street when it was hit.

Paul Galliger, driver, and the Misses Ruth Galliger and Anna Rachford, asserted their car was traveling at a moderate rate of speed, probably not exceeding twenty miles an hour when it was hit. The Galliger car was in default of $1,000 bond.

FIRST PHOTO OF TRAIN CRASH IN WHICH ELEVEN MET DEATH

Here is the first photo of the crossing crash at Kenosha, Wis., in which eleven met death and eighty were injured when a speeding electric train on the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee struck an auto, hurling it into the path of an oncoming freight, which in turn crashed the heavily loaded passenger express. The picture shows the twisted steel passenger coaches in which most of the dead were found. Witnesses declared the auto tried to beat the train over the crossing.

"TEDDY" IS DEAD

"Teddy" is dead and little Billy Ungard, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Ungard, N. King St., mourns his passing bitterly.

"Teddy" was a German police puppy and he was Billy's constant pal and companion. Monday afternoon they both romped at play in the yard. Then, suddenly, "Teddy" became ill. A veterinarian said he had eaten raw pork on which strychnine had been placed.

Because "Teddy's" eyes were open, Billy couldn't believe at first that his little friend was dead. Made to realize the awful fact, he heaped maledictions on the dog poisoner.

HANNAH DEFIANT OF INVESTIGATORS OF HORST MURDER CASE

Believe Prisoner Is Near "Break"; Body Sought

WOOSTER, O., Feb. 25.—Turning like a wolf at bay, Charles Hannah, who is believed to be the "key witness" in Wayne County's strange case—the kidnapping of Melvin Horst—early today defied investigating officials to make him disclose where he had buried the body of the long missing lad, whom he confesses, he slew.

Hannah, after undergoing a ceaseless barrage of questions, "cracked" just after midnight, and shouted:

"Don't you think I know that if I tell you where Melvin's body is, and you find it, I'll go to the electric chair?"

Authorities, however, are confident that Hannah is on the verge of a "breakdown" and they expect startling developments before evening.

Meanwhile, search for Melvin's body turned to a woods near Kidron, after Hannah admitted that he was the man who accompanied Earl Connel, Hannah's alleged co-conspirator, to the woods early one morning, about a week after Melvin disappeared from the streets of Orrville, never to be seen again.

Adam Amstutz made the statement to police that he saw the men near that woods. Amstutz is a farmer.

Officials declared that they believe Hannah knows where the body of little Melvin is buried. The confessed slayer is said to have told police that Melvin's body was disposed of in the Kidron woods.

It is known that deputies made a trip to the place early yesterday, but the result of the inspection was not made known.

Mrs. Helen Hannah, wife of the "mad" man of many confessions, and the modern Annals, meanwhile, announced that she had retained Richard T. Mills, of the Cleveland law firm of Silverman, Mitchell and Mills, as attorney for her husband.

Sheriff Clark Shearer is in complete charge of the investigation, which has attracted nation-wide attention. County Prosecutor Marion Graven has turned his attention to the regular duties of his office and Ora Slater, famous Cincinnati detective, has withdrawn from the case.

SEVEN HURT DURING HEAVY STORM THAT SWEEP OHIO MONDAY

South Of Zanesville And Near Eaton Feel Storm

ZANESVILLE, O., Feb. 25.—Seven persons were injured, four seriously, property damage of $150,000 was done and 300 men were thrown out of work by the rain storm, which was prevalent throughout the entire state yesterday afternoon, and which struck the southern part of this county with terrific fury.

A swath about 100 yards wide was cut by the wind, which accompanied the rain the creek up today showed.

Mrs. Louis Owens, 48, her husband, Louis, 50, and a daughter, Lonnie, 14, were seriously hurt when a chimney crashed them as their house collapsed because of the terrific wind. Owen Miller 45, was seriously injured and his wife and two sons were slightly hurt, when the Miller home was "halved" by the wind. The residence was split in two.

Both of the devastated houses are located at Ironspot, about nine miles south of here.

Potteries in that area suffered heavy damage. The Ransbottom Pottery was unroofed and 300 men were temporarily thrown out of work. The Hydraulic Pressed Brick Company plant was demolished by the storm and will have to be rebuilt.

The Morgan Tharpe crate factory, near Ironspot, was also leveled by the wind.

Statement Issued To Refute Reports Of Failure

LONDON, Feb. 25.—In an effort to "clear the air of rumors and exaggerated reports" spread around the world since the five-power naval disarmament conference was adjourned last Wednesday because of France's cabinet difficulties, an official British government communique was issued today expressing the conviction that a satisfactory agreement would crown the work of the parley.

The communique, presumably dictated personally by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, was given out to the press by a government official at St. James' Palace.

The communique vigorously repudiates the suggestion that a three-power pact between the United States, Great Britain and Japan is all that the conference can hope to achieve, and denies that political questions are impeding the progress of the conference.

It was definitely stated that the scope of the parley will not be widened to include discussion of freedom of the seas and the question of neutral rights.

Regarding the three-power pact suggestion the communique declares:

"This question has never been considered as a way out of the difficulties of the conference. It must be remembered that the suggestion of a three-power pact is not in its conception helpful to the idea of the main disarmament work of the League of Nations."

"Up to the present moment the delegations have been so confident that a five-power pact will be arranged that there has been little more than casual conversation regarding any other arrangements."

Contrary to prevalent reports, the question of a political pact among the nations has never been formally raised by the French or any other delegation in any document or official conversation, the communique declares. It admits however that "there have been vague references to a political background but no formal proposals or discussions."

The communique states that the

THROAT SLASHED AS VICTIM LAY ASLEEP IS POLICE BELIEF

Husband Discovers Crime On Return From Night Work

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25.—With her throat slashed and her life's blood sapped from her veins and reddening the white pillow slips on which she had slept, Mrs. Evelyn Edgington, 19, a bride of a year and a half, was found murdered in bed here today.

Lawrence Edgington, about 20, the girl-bride's husband, found the body, he said, when he returned from work this morning. He is being held by police until the investigation of the murder has been completed.

The wall above the woman's bed was spattered with blood, but the woman herself was found with her arms folded across her breast and police declared that they believe she died without a struggle; that she was murdered as she slept.

Her husband, who is on the night shift at the Columbus Oil Co. h Company, told police he had returned this morning to find the doors of their furnished rooms at 35 Lorain Avenue open.

"I thought something was wrong then," said the young husband, "and when I went to my wife's bedroom, I found her in a pool of blood."

The only possible clue to the murder was a piece of a broken milk bottle which was found in the room. It was not blood-stained, but police believe that the other half of the bottle was the death weapon.

The young wife's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Francisco who reside in Dayton.

The Edgingtons, at one time, resided in Circleville.

Blood stains were found on the handle of the door of the bathroom and on a faucet in bath room. Police believe that the slayer may have attempted to wash his hands after killing the woman.

Ruth Edgington, 18, a sister of the husband, is believed to have been the last person to see Mrs. Edgington alive. She had visited her sister-in-law last evening and said she had left about 6:30 p. m.

Tom Haley, who resides in an apartment directly below the furnished rooms of the Edgingtons, said that he had been awakened several times during the night by someone pacing the floor above him.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Following a quarrel with his young wife in their Park Avenue apartment, Richard H. Jones, graduate of the U. S. Naval academy and vice-president of an oil company, killed himself by plunging from an eighth floor window today, according to police.

Jones, 25, his wife, the former Louise H. Conkey, is 20. The couple was in an altercation early this morning, according to the story of the tragedy given out by the police.

Mrs. Jones told authorities her husband picked up a floor lamp and struck her on the head with it.

As she reeled from the blow she said she saw her husband run to a rear window of the apartment which was open because of the mild weather. He threw himself out as his wife screamed in horror.

Mrs. Jones, who is extremely pretty, was treated for cuts on her scalp.

CLEVELAND WOMAN MADE CHIEF MATRON

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25.—Miss Dorothy Doane Henry, chief of the policewomen of the Cleveland department for the past several years, today had been appointed chief matron of the Girls' Industrial School, near Delaware, according to announcement by Hal Griswold, state welfare director.

Miss Henry will succeed Mrs. Margaret Elton, of Hillsboro, who recently resigned.

The woman, who is expected to take charge of the state institution in two weeks, declared that Miss Louise Moyse, also of the Cleveland police department, will be her chief assistant.

Miss Henry was formerly associated with the Cleveland Humane Society. She is a college graduate in sociology.

FARMERS SWEAR BY HIM

Frank Mullen Credited With Forming First Radio Farm Progress

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of sketches of the most prominent radio artists of the day. Others follow.)

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer
CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Meet a farmer the rest of the farmers swear by—Frank E. Mullen. He is the man who organized and put the first farm program on the air. Now markets and weather forecasts are the most valuable service rendered the sons of the soil.

Frank Mullen is still just a farmer. True, he has taken off his overalls and brushed the hay out of his dark, sleek hair, and sits behind a big desk. But, there is still the tang of the country in his speech when he is off guard—and the slow, amused smile of the farmer when he is asked to talk about himself. He is reluctant about it. But, we learned this much:

Agricultural Background
Mullen, a giant of a fellow—over six feet and built to match—was born in Kansas. He possesses a rich background of agricultural training, besides being an accomplished musician. He spent a part of his time on farms in Nebraska and South Dakota, and is a graduate of Iowa State Agricultural College.

It was in 1923 in Pittsburgh that Mullen organized the first farm program. It was unique then. He went up to Ligondier and brought back with him a crowd of real farmers, their wives, old-time fiddlers, and hill billys to make rural whoopee that evening. They even brought along a barrel of cider. (Sweet, of course, he assures us.)

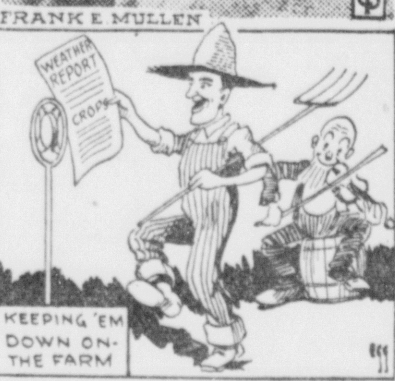

The studio, which was really a big barn, was decorated with corn stalks and such, and they danced and fiddled and sang "Little Brown Jug" and cut up terrible shins. It was as real a barn dance as ever was held, Mullen declares, and since has been copied by nearly every station in the country.

It aroused the farmers' interest as nothing else could. Brought back old days of husking bees and straw rides to the old generation and amused the younger.

Mullen becomes most sentimental when he talks of what radio has come to mean to the farmer—and to the farmer's wife and children. Every day from his station he gives weather reports that save the farmers many thousands of dollars yearly, warns them of impending dangers, tells them how to improve their methods.

"The radio has come to mean the salvation of the farmer's wife," Mullen said, earnestly. "It was just a few years ago that she had absolutely no contact with the outside world outside of a telephone, and the line was always busy at that. About all she could do was listen in."

Happier Farm Life
"Now while the men are in the fields she can tune in while she works, and listen to beautiful music, amusing sketches, current events, how to improve her home and cooking. It brings the great world to her feet. Most of them are entirely satisfied to sit home and listen. Every evening around the radio is like a theater to the farmer and his family. Farm life is so much happier that there is no comparison."

Frank Mullen puts a little bit of everything the farmer and his family would like in his farm programs. He knows, because he is one of them. The program goes on at 12 o'clock in some sections, and at 1 o'clock in others, so that farmer may enjoy it while he is home for dinner.

EDITORS: For the information of you and your readers, Frank Mullen broadcasts from Station WJL, Chicago.

THE NEW KOOLMOTOR OIL

The Perfect Pennsylvania Motor Oil

At last a perfectly balanced oil for modern motors

The manufacturer of your car built balance into your engine. This balance gives you a maximum of speed, power, dependability and smoothness of operation.

Cities Service experts have built perfect balance into a motor oil—the new Koolmotor Oil—to help you receive every benefit your manufacturer intended.

Not until the five tests of oil quality—viscosity, fire, flash, pour point and carbon residue—were brought into perfect harmony could you expect maximum service from your modern motor. In perfecting 5 point balance in motor oil, the benefits of these five quality tests have been perfectly blended by Cities Service experts.

Years of petroleum experience—the vast resources of the billion dollar Cities Service organization—expensive new equipment—all have been employed in perfecting this new, perfectly balanced Koolmotor Oil.

These are the benefits you receive—greater power, more speed, lower oil and gasoline consumption, fewer repairs and longer life for your car.

Don't try to make your motor do its best on out-of-date oils. Insist on a modern oil—a perfectly balanced oil—the new Koolmotor Oil—the oil with 5 point balance.

35c per quart—a fair retail price for the new Koolmotor Oil. The cost of lubrication is the smallest item in your operating and maintenance expenses. It pays to use the best.

"A severe attack of pneumonia had me in bed for eight weeks and no matter what medicine or tonic

MR. M. L. KNAPP

"I tried, I was unable to regain my strength after I had recovered from this illness," said Mr. M. L. Knapp, 217 Falls Ave., Youngstown, I lost considerable weight. My appetite was poor, and what I did eat did not digest as it should. I became very much discouraged as nothing I tried helped me.

"After learning that Konjola was highly recommended as a tonic and body-builder as well as a medicine, I decided to try it. Well, Konjola proved to be just the medicine I needed. At the end of four weeks I felt immeasurably better. I continued for a while with Konjola, and now all my old strength has returned. After what this master medicine did for me I cannot say too much in praise of it."

Konjola is a new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the point of the illness of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. RALPH NEEDL WILL OPEN NEW FUNERAL HOME ON WEDNESDAY

A modern funeral home will be opened by Ralph M. Needl, Xenia funeral director, Wednesday at a handsome fourteen-room residence, occupying a double lot at the north-west corner of Market and King Sts., recently purchased from Dr. A. C. Messenger.

Since the interior of his undertaking establishment at 44 W. Main St., was gutted by a $15,000 fire, last November 29, the Needl funeral parlors have been temporarily located in a building on E. Second St. formerly owned by Dr. B. R. McClellan and recently bought by Dr. G. W. Kuhn, local dentist.

Removal of the funeral parlors to the new location will be completed Wednesday, it is announced. The interior of the large residence has been renovated and extensive refinishing work has been in progress for some time to convert the property into a funeral home that will be up-to-date in every respect.

No remodeling work has been necessary, according to Mr. Needl, who declares the residence is particularly well adapted for a modern funeral parlor. The ground floor contains seven rooms besides two hallways. The two east rooms will be used as a chapel and there will also be a show room, slumber room and preparation room on the first floor.

For the present the Needl family will continue to live on N. Galloway St., the new property being used exclusively as an undertaking establishment.

It is doubtful, however, that the premier-designate will be able to accompany his colleagues if they leave for London tomorrow.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

My son, forget now my law; but let thine heart keep my commandments: For length of days, and long life, and peace, shall they add to thee.—Proverbs, iii, 1, 2.

MODERN PORTIA

A young woman in San Francisco is studying law with the avowed intention of specializing in the defense of men sued for divorce, separate maintenance, alimony and similar perquisites of her own sex. She ought to be able to work up a whirlwind practice in a field which heretofore has been largely left to the gold-diggers to till. A woman of counsel for the defense might have some chance against a pretty face in the witness box of a court dominated by sentimental men; and it is about time some fair barrister evened things up by going to the mat with her mercenary sisters. The alimony racket has been carried so far in this country that a deserving, self-respecting divorcee prefers to refuse the support to which she is entitled to exposing herself to the suspicion of having married a man for his money.

The theory and practice of alimony, as they exist today, are relics of the time when the vast majority of women were economic dependents, when divorce was regarded as a disgrace, when a divorcee's family, after thanking its star that she was married off its hand, would not receive her back, when consequently alimony often spelled the difference between decency and the gutter. The economic emancipation of women has altered the social aspect of divorce; but it has not removed the biological handicap nature imposes on their sex. Women mature sooner than men and pass the deadline of marriage much earlier. A man who occupies the best years of a woman's life and then divorces her or by his actions forces her to divorce him depreciates her chances of marrying again or even of earning a living; and for that he should provide adequate compensation.

A good many men don't want to do this. At the same time, a good many women forfeit their moral right to consideration by their obvious and unbridled mammonism. They work the alimony or the heart-balm game for all there is in it and then some. Some of them do not stop short of blackmail to gain their ends. Against a sobbing plaintiff, accusing him of not having done right by her, what chance has a mere man in a masculine court, whose chivalry rises above all considerations of sex loyalty? A Portia might balance things and give the defendant at least an even break.

MENTAL ACTIVITIES

Dr. Edmund Jacobson of the University of Chicago is undertaking to prove by experimentation that "mental activity and imagination are functions involving the whole body rather than brain action alone." The underlying idea that Dr. Jacobson is trying to develop is not novel. It occurs naturally to any person who is familiar with the general relationship between the brain and the nerve centers distributed throughout the human body. And almost anyone who considers the matter at all, will be able to find what seems to be evidence of the reasonableness of theory in his recollections of personal experience, particularly on the emotional side. A "thrill," to suggest a somewhat crude and obvious example, is by no means limited to the brain area, sometimes it seems to affect that area only in a secondary way.

But that is a far cry from the development of systematic, precise proof of the general anatomical nature of thought; and if Dr. Jacobson can present such proof to the world, he will be advancing knowledge in a most fascinating direction and may be able to clear up some puzzles which now seem immeddled in mystery.

There is a practical difficulty about leaving wrecked cars along the country roadsides as warnings. There wouldn't be any room left for bill boards.

Graying temples do not necessarily indicate an increase of gray matter inside them.

The unregulated motorbus is the modern avatar of the ancient juggernaut.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WHY?

Somebody does well to ask this question:

"Why ask youngsters to memorize so many dates of battles and past wars, together with facts as to who won or who was defeated, when war has now been renounced? Aren't there enough peaceful achievements whose dates might be memorized with greater profit?"

It's not much to your credit to remember when Napoleon marched to Russia and back again or when the Greeks and the storm combined to upset Xerxes and the Persians, but it adds something of value to education to know when the steam engine was invented, electricity was discovered, the telegraph devised, and the telephone perfected. And everybody ought to know when the first railroad was built in the United States and especially when the first transcontinental rail journey was made possible. The achievements of peace are more marvelous than those of war and ought longer to be remembered.

YOUTH NOT ALL

Don't sadly fool yourself that if youth is lost all is lost. Youth has no monopoly of success, no exclusive franchise for the great achievements of life. When Abraham Lincoln was 40 years old he had little to his credit. He had served a term in congress and made little name for himself. He was a pretty good Illinois small city and country politician and that is about all. Even in 1860 when he was 59 years old, his achievements were not great and his ambitions not taken very seriously by many people. And in five years from that time he was dead. And yet, in five years, without youth, he put himself among the greatest of all Americans.

IMAGINATION AND WILL

The imagination is more powerful than the will. It is possible by the strong exercise of the will to force yourself to do many difficult things, to improve yourself in many things. But if by use of the imagination you can bring yourself into the state of really desiring to do something difficult, it is much easier to accomplish it. Will is powerful but imagination is more powerful.

THE BOOTLEG BATH

There have been many different kinds of bootleggers in the history of mankind. Benjamin Franklin was a bootlegger. In the day of the great philosopher, scientist, journalist, and patriot it was against city ordinance in Philadelphia to use water inside one's house for bathing. Franklin had a copper tub made in the form of a shoe and when he felt like it he slipped up to the attic quite secretly and had a bath.

Fortunately the ordinance has been repealed.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

To give credit to a single individual for any one of the world's great inventions seldom is possible. Most of them were developed gradually. Michael Faraday discovered the dynamo principle in 1831. Charles Wheatstone applied it practically in 1841, with improvement following improvement to the present day. Johann Gutenberg, of the mid-15th century, usually is spoken of as the first printing pressman, but some authorities say Laurens Janszoon Coster preceded him by a few years. However, the Chinese were printers before Christ was born. William Nicholson, of London, patented the first steam-driven cylinder press in 1790. In the same year, Nathan Read, another Briton, patented the first automobile—a steamer. Gottlieb Daimler contributed the gas engine in 1884. Maybe George Sheldon of Rochester (N. Y.) with his application of the internal combustion principle in 1895, should be deemed the father of the modern car.

Rare Coins

There is no "premium" on any coin. That is, no coin will COMMAND any particular price in excess of its face. If it is rare, it may have an especial value to a collector, but how much he will pay depends on what he can afford and how badly he wants the coin. A dealer is like any amateur fan except that he is apt to be a harder bargainer, inasmuch as he wants a profit. Indian head pennies are worth no more than Lincoln pennies.

Aviation

1. Must an aviator have a high school education? 2. How much schooling must he have? 3. How can he secure such employment?

1. Not to enter civilian aviation schools. 2. He ought to have at least a primary school education, but there have been exceptions. 3. Aviation schools and flying fields would be natural places to look for work. A start might be obtained by serving without pay for a while as a mechanic.

Nicaraguan Canal

What are the prospects of a Nicaraguan canal?

The United States has a treaty with Nicaragua authorizing a route from the mouth of the San Juan river, up the river, thence to Lake Nicaragua across the lake and through the mountains to a Pacific outlet approximately at San Juan del Sur, a survey has been made and another is starting, but that a canal will be dug and, if so, when, can only be surmised. There are rival routes. Enlarged facilities at Panama also are deemed by some engineers a better solution of the problem, at least for years to come.

Mathematics

In what classes of work is algebra likeliest to be practically useful?

Notably architecture, engineering, chemistry and mechanics.

(NOTE: Charles P. Stewart's treatise on "Our Government" can be obtained by sending ten cents in coin to Central Press Washington Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C.)

WELL, A FELLOW HAS TO EAT

NEW YORK CITY, New York — Lone Wolf of the Blackfoot tribe is visiting New York, drumming up the tourist trade for Arizona and trying to make believe he's not having a good time.

"I haven't had a square meal since I hit this place," he complained as he disconsolately bit into a pate de foie gras sandwich at Tony Sag's recent tea-party.

"If you want plenty real good food," he continued, reaching for a caviar tidbit, "come out to my ranch in Arizona and I'll show you some honest-to-God cooking."

And forthwith he fell to talking of deer meat, wild turkeys, onions, carrots, Johnny cakes, bay leaves and blueberries.

Then he reached across the table and grabbed up half a dozen cocktail sandwiches in his big, brown, moist, earnest tilt.

"I don't see how you can live here," he sighed.

PEASANTS OR PATRONS?

The society of Daughters of Holland Dames of the Ancient and Honorable Families of the New Netherlands, called by the sinful "The Ancient Dames of Amsterdam," hired Bob Aitken, the sculptor, to do a little group for them depicting their ancestors landing in the city of Manhattan. The girls expected something flowy in the ancestor line—something like a cross between a musical comedy chorus and a row of Rembrandts. Instead, Bob hacked out a statue showing up the forefathers as a bunch of peasants.

The "Ancient Dames of Amsterdam" let loose a wail that was heard from Dan to Beersheba. Their ancestors weren't peasants, they said. They were patrons. And to prove

Norris Sees Fall of Big Business And Adoption of Public Ownership With More Victories Like Hughes'

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—A few more victories like Charles Evans Hughes' elevation to the United States supreme court chief justiceship and Senator George W. Norris' prediction that American "big business" will be undone.

The next thing big business knows, prophesies the Nebraskan, the country will adopt public ownership.

And, for a fact, no one would have believed in advance in the possibility of such a fight as the progressive group put up, to prevent the senate from confirming the Hughes appointment by President Hoover. Two or three votes against it were the most that reasonably could have been foreseen. Yet, on the final showdown, there were 20-odd. For one while there seemed to be some prospect that the presidential choice would be rejected outright. The administration leaders were thoroughly scared. It would have been a terrific slap at Mr. Hoover and a rightful humiliation for Mr. Hughes. Even an adverse vote of more than 20 was anything but flattering.

In reality the attack was rather on Mr. Hoover than on Mr. Hughes for it was Mr. Hoover, who, by implication, was accused of making a bad selection; Mr. Hughes was recognized as an able, honest man, in his way.

The truth is, an analysis of Mr. Hughes' career does not reveal him as quite as total a conservative as the progressives called him. He rose to legal fame as something of a monopoly-buster. His start in public life was gained through his attacks on the financial methods of the insurance companies of a generation ago. He took a crack at the gas monopoly next. A direct primary law was passed in New York state during his term as governor.

On the federal supreme bench in the 1910-16 period he was not known as especially liberal, but neither was he considered reactionary. While no progressive, like Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes he was anything but an ultra-conservative of the type of the present Justice Pierce Butler, ex-railroad attorney, or even retiring Chief Justice Taft. Indeed, out of more than 1,000 decisions in which he had a voice with Justice Holmes, he disagreed with the latter twice.

Mr. Hughes certainly was a highly conservative secretary of state. However, he was dealing then with issues of international policy for a very conservative president, Mr. Coolidge, and could plead that he was influenced of necessity by White House ideas. Conservatism unquestionably characterized all his arguments throughout his subsequent five years of private legal practice. He even went to the length of claiming a vested interest in the that they had blue blood in their veins they held up the sculptor's bill. Bob hailed them into the ball-wild of Blackstone and the supreme court has just handed down a decision telling the Ancient Dames of Amsterdam to pay Bob what's coming to him and quit their kiddin'.

Every once in a while the supreme court does something to justify its existence.

air for radio licenses. Still, this was as a paid lawyer. He was not occupying a judicial position but doing his best for his customers, as he had a right to do.

Although it was not emphasized in the senate debate, the principal count against him was that he was appointed by President Hoover, and appointed in such a hurry as to hint (some senators implied) at an effort to rush the matter through before opposition could develop.

The suspicion was best expressed by the utilities magnate, Henry L. Doherty, in his widely-published statement, charging a plan, with Mr. Hoover as its chief engineer, to concentrate the principal power of the country in a few hands—the executive branch of the government under his own thumb; the judicial branch under the tightest control obtainable.

It was an exceptionally vigorous statement which, for whatever it may have been worth, made a deep impression on the senate progressives.

Talk of Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., as a candidate for governor of New York, immediately following his retirement from the post of solicitor general in the justice's department, because of his father's appointment to a court before which the solicitor general frequently practices; reports of the tentative selection of retiring Chief Justice Taft's son, Charles P. Taft, for the position as solicitor general—these suggestions aggravated the situation. They were rumors calculated to heighten the impression of a tendency toward concentration of authority under dependable management.

The appointment to high positions of persons who previously have been turned down by the voters also is becoming increasingly unpopular.

"Lame ducks"—that is to say, politicians in the past generally renounced or representatives who have been defeated at the polls and consequently are given appointive posts, because unable to win electorally. It may not be intended as an affront to the vot-

Add milk does not bubble up and go over on account of high temperature of sugar. ers, but is more or less so interpreted.

And Justice Taft had been beaten for the presidency so was his successor. Once was not noticeable, but twice was somewhat more so.

The controversy over Mr. Hughes' appointment at any rate has had the excellent result of affording an opportunity for a number of men in prominent positions to puncture the theory that the U. S. supreme court under no circumstances must be unfavorably criticized.

This body (human, of course), has long been treated as almost of divine origin.

Any intimation that its membership, with the exception of Justices Holmes and Brandeis, has been decidedly mediocre in recent years, at best, has been regarded as almost blasphemous—really has not been safe, indeed. Such remarks will not sound so startling for some time to come, after the comment broadcast from the senate in the course of the Hughes discussion.

METHUSELAH OF INSECTLAND

"Ladies and gentlemen!" shrieked Biffer, who had taken it upon himself to be the "bally-hoo man" of the circus. "Ladies and gentlemen of Insectland, I am going to introduce to you a few freaks found nowhere else in the world save in the meadows and by the brookside.

"This old gentleman here," and Biffer put his claw on the back of a dusky looking insect that had just crawled to his side, "this old gentleman is the Methuselah of the insects, the 17-year-old Locust. Only his name is a joke on him. For he isn't a Locust at all. He belongs to the tribe of Bugs and his real name is Cicada. What do you think this fellow has been doing all his life long? He has been hiding in the roots of a tree living on its bitter juices. For 17 years he has been shut up in the dark, 'twas only a few days ago he came up into the sunshine. But for all he came into the world much older than any of us are, his heart is young and in the right place. Listen, folks, what do you think 'Methuselah' did yesterday?"

"What did he do?" shrieked the insects in chorus.

"He married the prettiest bride in all Cicada circles and took her to live in that big tree that grows in the meadow. Cicada and his wife are now home to all their friends. Only, the happy couple have asked me to say no Hornets or Wasps are welcome."

The insects chuckled, but Peter, the boy, was puzzled.

"Why don't 'Methuselah' and his wife like Hornets?" he asked.

Biffer took time to explain things. "There's a mighty good reason," said he. "You see when Wasp or Hornet, either, for that matter, meets 'Methuselah' he stings the old fellow so badly that he can't move a wing. Poor 'Methuselah' is helpless."

Diet and Health

Psittacosis

Polly doesn't want a cracker now. He wants sympathy.

Did you ever hear a parrot sing grand opera, or sing anything? It's surprising how much parrots can be taught! I have a friend in Los Angeles whose parrot entertained a party of us one afternoon. When one of the guests sang, the parrot got on the stool with her and sang with her at the top of its voice. A grand opera aria, too! And it actually seemed (most of the time) to get the correct tones. I'm wondering if my friend is giving my entertainments of this sort, now, with the poor polly under such suspicion.

Recently I heard Dr. Lee Crandell, curator of birds at the New York zoo, in the sound news in the movies, give a talk on Psittacosis, or parrot fever. I was quite sure he stated that there were no authenticated cases of human infection from parrots. That was a very broad statement, after health departments have been reporting cases that are supposed to be psittacosis, and have been warning against handling sick parrots, especially those that have been recently purchased. So I rang him up before beginning this article, to make sure we heard him right. He stated that he wouldn't want to go on record as saying there were no human cases of psittacosis, but what he meant was that there were no authentic cases; that is, the germ of the disease has never been isolated in the human cases. In fact, although there is a germ called the psittacosis bacillus, it is not known surely to be the cause of the fatal disease. Dr. Crandell's chief idea (he told me) was to allay the sort of a hysteria against parrots that is sweeping over the country.

There is no doubt that there is a parrot fever—psittacosis—which is usually fatal to them, and that at times those who handle these sick birds come down with a peculiar type of pneumonia, with typhoid symptoms; so the health departments are warning against handling new parrots that have just been imported to the country, and impressing the importance of washing the hands very thoroughly even after handling the birds or the cages.

If your parrot has not developed a disease after you have had it for two weeks, the chances are, if it should sicken, that it is not from psittacosis. But if you do have a newly imported parrot, and it develops a disease, it is best to report it to your health department. And don't feed any parrot from your mouth!

An interesting point was brought out in the Bulletin of the New York department of health on this subject. It is this:

"The psittacosis bacillus is pathogenic (disease-producing) for parrots and other birds. It is possible that this bacillus exists normally in parrots, and only become pathogenic under circumstances of bad hygiene, when it causes an enteritis. The feathers, becoming contaminated with fecal matter, are cleaned by the parrot with its tongue in the usual way, so that its mouth and bill become infected, and this means the disease is spread to persons who feed or caress the bird. Very rarely the disease spread from man to man."

This bad hygiene resistance lowering factor parallels underlying causes of many infections in man.

I imagine by the time this appears (three weeks) the scare will have entirely subsided, because President Hoover has already signed an order temporarily barring the importation of parrots into the United States from any country.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

JERRY: When a boy's mother is sick in the hospital, Jerry, it is only right that he should go to see her often, even if it means neglecting somewhat the girl he likes. Why not, as you suggest, ask him to take you to see her? It would please them both. Try to picture yourself in them both's place or in his place. You can, by this means, get a much better idea of their feelings.

MEL I.: Your question is hard to answer. Living as you say you are, I think it would be better to legalize your union by marriage. If his love for this other woman is not dead, or proved to be infatuation, you run the same risk of losing him now as you would if you were married. Possibly if you were married, and he should again meet her, the tie would keep him loyal to you.

Every unhappily married person thinks that the particular fault of their mate is the worst possible one. Would you rather have a man a philanderer, with an amiable disposition, or one that came home every night in a rage and threatened you with physical violence?

Would you rather have a wife who is dissatisfied with you because you are a quiet, upright person without a "past," and she requires someone with showier attributes? Or one who is insanely jealous, or a slut about her person and housekeeping?

Of course you would choose none of these, but if you had inadvertently chosen a person of such character, wouldn't you feel as if their particular trait was the worst possible, that you could bear anything better than that?

TWO LONESOME BUTTERFLIES: When girls are in their teens and the boys begin to walk home from school with them and ask them for dates, then they are usually considered old enough to have boy friends—with reservations and under parental limitations. Some parents, however, think a girl should be at least 18 before she has company. When a girl tells you boys do as they wish? The matter has to be thrashed out in each family. When young people have good parents who do everything for them it does seem to me they should regard their wishes. The time when your young people are at home, under your guidance, is very short and you are so lucky to have parents to look for you, that, even when such requests seem unreasonable, it is better to obey and have the best possible time you can under the circumstances if you can by persistent coaxing, get them to give in.

DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: A little more than three years ago to young men were in love with me. The oldest of them did me a good turn and I married him. I did not love him, only liked and respected him. I was a good, true, kind wife to him until the past summer. I was not in very good health at that time and he would not let me leave to go to work which I did.

"Since then I have seen the other man and I know he loves me and dearly loves him. He wants to be a divorce and marry me. He tells me if you think it would be right to let him. My husband won't let me. MUCH WORRIED."

It's hard to say what is the right thing to do in your case. If your husband just ordered you to take care of yourself when he was not feeling well, I don't see how he can expect you to run back with him he beckons.

I don't usually like to advise a divorce, but in this case, it seems to me you should follow the dictates of your own heart, gain your freedom and marry the man you love.

CURLY: I think you run a risk to have children by a man who acts as your husband does. Let him show you that he can go straight and be relied upon before you go to stay with him and take all responsibilities.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

CHARM is poise. I think. Perhaps not all of it, but certainly a major part. And poise is—what? Doing the natural thing in a graceful way. Doing it with all of you. Your mind, of course, your voice and your body, too. As a famous dancer told me once:

"Consider the greatest artists—the greatest singers the greatest actresses and musicians. The singer who holds her audience in the hollow of her hand is the one who sings not with the voice alone, but with the arms the expression, the body, too. A musician may be holding his violin quite still, but his body will be tensed or relaxed, dramatic or very restful. You can almost feel the vibration. The artists of the ballet tell stories with their bodies, not with the body alone. The woman who is sincere and serious in her quest for beauty begins with her mind. She believes in herself, she cultivates a certain attitude, which becomes so much a part of her that all the routine of her efforts become natural; in word, effortless."

There are no temptations for her if she is dieting. Cakes and pies are singularly uninteresting. If she is planning a morning exercise period, after a certain hour, is no longer appealing. She has conviction and purpose and it dominates her whole body.

Show me a woman who is sincere in her efforts, let me advise her on the simplest of facial regimen and in as little as one month, I can show you a good looking, youthful attractive person!

I am sure of it. I have done again and again. In England, Paris, Vienna, and here in America, too. To arrive at a mental co-ordination, one needs enthusiasm, a routine. To arrive at physical co-ordination, one needs repetition, relaxation, exercise and music.

It is very practical, you see. It can be easily done, for if you have the will to be beautiful, I can show you the way.

Spring Valley boys and Bellbrook girls, 1929 winners in the annual Greene County Class B basketball tournament, are favored to retain their titles in the fifteenth annual renewal of the county tourney at Xenia Central High School gymnasium Friday and Saturday.

Spring Valley's principal opposition is expected to be provided by Ross Twp., Cedarville and Bellbrook, while Bellbrook girls, undefeated within and without county circles for two straight seasons, are considered a clinch to win the feminine title for the second straight year.

The assumption that Spring Valley will again cop the boys' championship is based on the team's record of losing only one game played this season. This defeat by Bellbrook was later avenged. However, Ross Twp., is considered a most dangerous contender as it boasts one of the greatest teams ever to represent this school.

The annual county tourney which will determine Greene County's two representatives in the Class B division of the regional state tournament at Springfield next week end, was founded in 1915 by Lowell Fess, son of United States Senator Simon D. Fess, Yellow Springs.

It was staged under auspices of Antioch College until 1927, when the event was transferred to Xenia Central High and has been held at the local gymnasium since that year.

Xenia Central participated in the tourney during the first eight years but after winning the title twice withdrew from the competition.

Since the tourney was inaugurated, Cedarville High is the only school which has won the boys' title three times, Xenia, Osborn, and Yellow Springs each won it twice, and Beaver Creek, Jamestown, Bath Twp., Ross Twp., Bellbrook and Spring Valley, each once.

The girls' division was added in 1919 and since that year the feminine title has been won by Cedarville three times, by Yellow Springs three times, Bath Twp. twice and Beaver Creek and Bellbrook each once.

Here are the tourney winners each year since the event was instituted:

| Year | Boys | Girls |
|------|--------------|----------------|
| 1915 | Xenia | |
| 1916 | Osborn | |
| 1917 | Osborn | |
| 1918 | Cedarville | |
| 1919 | Xenia | |
| 1920 | Beaver Creek | Yellow Springs |
| 1921 | Y. Springs | Cedarville |
| 1922 | Jamestown | Cedarville |
| 1923 | Cedarville | Ross Twp. |
| 1924 | Y. Springs | Yellow Springs |
| 1925 | Bath Twp. | Yellow Springs |
| 1926 | Ross Twp. | Beaver Creek |
| 1927 | Cedarville | Bath Twp. |
| 1928 | Bellbrook | Bath Twp. |
| 1929 | Spring V. | Bellbrook |

Xenia fans may not patronize Xenia Central High football games to a desirable extent, but in basketball it is different. The answer may be that the Bucs annually have a winning basketball team for some reason or other and that the football seasons are frequently disappointing.

That Xenia's basketball team is a great drawing card has been illustrated on numerous occasions this season. Local followers of the team turned out in large numbers when the Bucs played at Miamisburg, more than 100 visiting rooters being denied admission because the Burger gym was crowded to capacity.

Again last Saturday afternoon when Xenia met its Waterloo against Dayton Stivers at the Dayton coliseum hundreds of Xenia fans were in evidence. Stivers as an attraction may have had something to do with this, however.

The popularity of the Bucs has been amply demonstrated time and again this season, particularly by the wonderful attendance at home games when the local gymnasium, if not actually packed to overflowing, has always been well filled with all desirable seats taken.

SCHOOLS VOTE DOWN "SEEDING" SYSTEM; COMMITTEES NAMED

Spring Valley, Defending Boys' Champions, And Ross Twp. Leading Opponent, Are In Opposite Brackets; Games Start Friday.

By PHIL FRAME

The "seeding" system will not prevail for the fifteenth annual Greene County Class B basketball tournament to be staged at Xenia Central High School gymnasium Friday and Saturday.

The nine schools which will compete in the tourney decided against the seeding system by a close vote of five to four when drawings for the first round were made at a meeting of school superintendents at the office of H. C. Aultman, county school superintendent, Monday afternoon.

In the boys' division, the luck of the draw placed Spring Valley, defending champion, and Ross Twp., considered its most dangerous contender, in opposite brackets, and these two teams are favored to meet in the finals.

Ross Twp., however, faces a tough assignment in order to reach the finals as it will be called upon to play three preliminary games in two days and must defeat the three strongest teams entered outside of Spring Valley in order to earn the right to compete in the final round. Spring Valley, which drew Caesar Creek as its first round opponent, should have comparatively easy sailing. If victorious the county champs will play the winner of the Yellow Springs-Bowersville game in the semi-finals. On the other hand, Ross Twp. did not draw a first round bye and opens with Jamestown. If victorious, Ross will meet Bellbrook. "Providing this obstacle is hurdled, Ross will then be required to face the winner of the Cedarville-Beaver Creek game."

Bellbrook girls, undefeated in two straight years, must win four games to retain the county feminine title. Yellow Springs, classed as the team Bellbrook must beat to win the championship, is in the opposite side of the draw, and is favored to reach the final round. Jamestown and Ross Twp. boys' teams and Bellbrook and Jamestown girls' teams were the only teams which did not draw first round byes.

Tourney play will start at 10 a. m. Friday with a game between Bellbrook and Jamestown girls' sextets. The second game at 11 a. m. Friday will bring together Ross Twp. and Jamestown boys' quintets.

Inaugurating the second round of play at 1 p. m. Friday, Yellow Springs girls will play Bowersville and at 2 p. m. Yellow Springs boys and Bowersville struggle for supremacy. Spring Valley and Beaver Creek girls are scheduled to meet at 3 p. m. and a contest between Caesar Creek and Spring Valley boys' teams will bring the afternoon program to a close. Four second round games will be played Friday night, Caesar Creek girls playing Ross Twp. at 6:30 o'clock and Cedarville and Beaver Creek boys' teams tangling at 7:30 p. m. At 8:30 o'clock Cedarville girls will take the floor against the winner of the Jamestown-Bellbrook game and Bellbrook boys will meet the winner of the Ross Twp.-Jamestown battle at 9:30 p. m.

No tourney games will be played Saturday morning but the semi-finals in both divisions will be run off in the afternoon.

In the opening semi-final game in the girls' class at 1 p. m. Saturday, the winner of the Yellow Springs-Bowersville game will meet the survivor of the Spring Valley-Beaver Creek contest. The other semi-final girls' game is carded for 3 o'clock between the winner of the Cedarville-Beaver Creek game and the winner of the Ross Twp.-Jamestown battle.

The winner of the Yellow Springs-Bowersville game and the winner of the Cedarville-Beaver Creek game will fight it out in the upper bracket in the opening semi-final boys' struggle at 2 p. m. Saturday. In the other semi-final match at 4:30 p. m. the team which survives the Cedarville-Beaver Creek game will contest for the right to enter the finals with either Bellbrook, Ross Twp. or Jamestown.

The semi-final winners in the feminine division will meet in the final round at 7:30 p. m. Saturday and the semi-final survivors in the boys' division will battle for the county title at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night.

The two boys' teams which reach the final round will represent Greene County in the regional Class B state tournament at Springfield March 7 and 8.

In connection with the county tourney the second annual football shooting contest will be held for both boys and girls. The free throw contests will be held just before the games are played and entrants will be given thirty shots instead of twenty as was the case last year, it is announced.

The tournament is again in charge of A. F. Roush, superintendent of Ross Twp. schools, and the games will be refereed by E. E. Prugh, Ohio Wesleyan, former Antioch College coach, and G. Laymon, Georgetown.

Various committees for the tourney have been appointed. Supt. C. A. Devoe will be doorkeeper and Supt. O. N. Sams will have charge of the scorebook and clock room. P. Harper and D. L. Fields will be official scorers and L. Rogers and C. Baynard will act as timers. C. Glass and E. Richards will be assistant timers. Phyllis Jones has been selected as girls' matron and Supt. H. D. Furst and Supt. P. G. Meranda have been appointed boys' managers.

STIVERS MAY AGAIN WIN CHAMPIONSHIP AT STATE TOURNEY

Defending Champs Again Favored To Capture Flag

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25.—With the 1930 basketball season rapidly drawing to a close, Ohio fans of the cage sport are turning their attention to the tournaments.

The raft of basketball tourneys which are held annually in all parts of the state for this or that championship, have already started—three county tournaments being held last week end. The remainder of the Buckeye counties will hold their annual tournaments the coming week end.

Competition in all parts of the state has been exceptionally keen this season. Part of this has been due to the growth of interest in the court game, which is now considered as one of the major sports. Additional interest has been acquired by the awarding of beautiful trophies to winners of the many county, sectional and district titles.

Sectional tournaments are scheduled for March 6 and 7 in approximately thirty different parts of the state, with titles going to teams in Classes A and B. The district tournaments, which always attract much interest because the winners qualify for the state tourney, will be held in six different centers March 13 and 14.

The six Ohio basketball districts, with the places in which the tournaments will be held, are:

Central district: A teams, Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware; B teams, Otterbein College, Westerville.

Eastern district: A and B teams, Denison, Tuscarawas County.

Northeastern district: A teams, Akron Goodyear Gymnasium, Akron; B teams, Kent State College, Kent.

Northwestern district: A teams, Findlay College, Findlay; B teams, Findlay High School, Findlay.

Southwestern district: A and B teams, Dayton Coliseum, Dayton.

Southeastern district: A and B teams, Ohio University, Athens.

The eyes of the state are focused on Stivers High School of Dayton, which appears to be on its way to annex its eighth state championship. It is doubtful whether the powerful Stivers team will be eliminated from the state tournament which will be held at the Coliseum, at the state fair grounds here, March 20 and 21. The Dayton champs win the district meet, they will come to the state finals to defend their title for the third consecutive year.

Stivers took the bacon home last year, winning every game with comparative ease. "Big Bill" Hosket, who plays basketball like a professional, is the mainstay of the Gem City five. He towers six feet and a little more than three inches above the floor in his stocking feet. Hosket would be an asset to any college team, but Stivers has him this year, and will seek another title with his help.

Akron St. Mary's, the winner of last year's Class B title, may get another crack at the championship, but it is too far ahead of tourney-time to make any predictions. Bluffton, Delaware, Boardman and Stryker are all expected to show well in the district meets and may make another trip to the state-wide affair.

The most probable contenders for the northeastern district championship, Youngstown Chaney, has been suspended for a violation of the rules, and Akron South or Canton McKinley appear as possible winners.

SPORTS REVIEW OF 1929-- OCTOBER BY NORMAN BROWN

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Central Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Baseball monopolized the attention of the sport world the opening half of October and then was shoved off the stage by football. The overwhelming victory of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics over the Chicago Cubs was a surprise.

OCTOBER 5 — Glenn Collett, leading woman golfer, drew the spotlight in the full before the world's series, by winning the national women's golf championship—her fourth, and giving her the distinction of being the first woman to accomplish this feat. She defeated Mrs. Leona Pressler, sister of Californian, 4-3, in the finals at Birmingham, Mich.

OCTOBER 8—The Athletics took the first game of the world's series, 3-1. Connie Mack surprised the baseball world by starting the veteran Howard Ehmke, who had won but half a dozen games all year. Ehmke set a new world's series strikeout record by fanning 13 of the Cubs, topping the fanning record of Big Ed Walsh, made in 1906, by one.

OCTOBER 9—The Athletics took second game, 9-3, Earnshaw and Grove striking out thirteen Cubs.

OCTOBER 11 — The Cubs won the third game, 3-1, at Philadelphia, bunching two hits and a pass with an error. Earnshaw, coming back, fanned 10 batters. Bush, for the Cubs, allowed nine scattered hits.

OCTOBER 12 — The Athletics made it three out of four by staging a record-breaking rally in the seventh inning, scoring ten runs and collecting ten hits in that round. Final score, Athletics 10, Cubs 8.

OCTOBER 14 — The Athletics won the series by coming from behind in the ninth inning, with the count 2 to 0, scoring three runs and winning, 3 to 2.

OCTOBER 12-13 — In the three most discussed games of the week end, Georgia's eleven defeated Yale, 15 to 0, Nebraska defeated Syracuse, 13 to 6, and Notre Dame triumphed over navy, 14 to 7.

OCTOBER 19—California's eleven defeated Penn, 12 to 7, in inter-sectional game. Lom, California star, ran opening kickoff 55 yards to place his team in scoring position and later in the game hurled a pass for the winning count 2 to 0, scoring three runs and winning, 3 to 2.

OCTOBER 29 — Mickey Walker successfully defeated his middleweight title in 10-round bout in Los Angeles by decisively defeating Ace Hudkins, having the latter nearly out on several occasions.

ALWAYS DEPENDABLE

"The Home of Thrift"

All loans of this Association are made on real estate mortgages—next after Government Bonus, the most dependable of all forms of security. Fluctuations of values of real estate in this locality are never sufficient to substantially impair their value.

This is a prosperous and substantial community. The general trend of real estate values is upward and the occasional temporary set-backs to this advance are not now, and never have been a menace to the sufficiency of this kind of security.

Building Association loans are made with a reasonable margin of security, and only a minor fraction of their whole number are ever concerned with a diminution of this margin through temporary recessions in values of real estate. Back of this security, in this Association, is a Safety Fund which, in an experience of 55 years, has proven ample for any needs. Let us send you a Booklet of Information.

PROPERTY OWNERS OPPOSE BUILDING; OTHER COURT NEWS

Four persons who own property in what they say is strictly a residential district in Yellow Springs have filed an injunction suit in Common Pleas Court seeking to prevent Wavalan J. Simms from completing the erection of a building now in the process of construction in the district to be used as a butcher shop.

Littleton, set forth that the district in which they own property is and has been occupied exclusively for residential purposes for a long time past and that the proposed butcher shop, to be located on the east end of Simms' lot, fronting on Center College St., will be a nuisance to surrounding residents and is contrary to a village ordinance.

Littleton is the owner of a lot adjacent to and immediately east of two lots owned by Simms on the northeast corner of the two streets, and Mrs. Littleton owns a lot east of Littleton's property fronting on Center College St., according to the petition.

The plaintiffs seek a temporary restraining order and ask that they be awarded whatever damages they are entitled to. Miller and Finney are attorneys for the plaintiffs.

THE DOCTOR SHOE for DAD AND THE BOYS

Dad Says: "It's a funny thing how fussy we are in looking after our automobile engine, and how little attention we give our feet. When you stop to think of it, we give our feet pretty tough treatment, don't we? About eighteen hours of each day they are sealed up in three or four layers of heavy cloth and leather—almost air-tight. Often cramped and pulled out of shape by poorly fitted shoes, or sliding and sloshing around in loose shoes, causing corns, blisters, etc. Under this handicap our feet carry the body load from morning 'till night. No wonder there are a lot of uncomfortable feet."

The DOCTOR SHOE combines good custom style with correct balance and scientific orthopedic construction. Wear a pair, and if you do not realize more real SHOE SATISFACTION than you have ever had before, your money will be refunded.

Moderation! THE FRIEND that prolongs your youth

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

Men who would keep that trim, proper form, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! : : : Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

The Theater

In connection with the vague account published in this column yesterday regarding the new Grandeur film with which Fox is experimenting, David P. Senter comes through with a very timely review of the Grandeur presentation of "Happy Days" at the Roxy Theater in New York.

Senter reveals that the picture is being shown on a screen of finely woven cotton cloth, with a thin layer of finely ground glass spread over the entire surface. It is forty-two feet long and twenty-feet deep compared with the standard screen size of twenty-four feet by eighteen feet.

Senter says the effect of the new device is more than a mere enlargement of a snap shot. It is as if the camera had been given two eyes instead of one. A half-dozen characters are shown in many scenes, each member of the group as clear as an etching.

A chain of chorus girls do their stuff without the photographic rimping noticeable in a standard sized screen. A minstrel show is the basis of the plot. As the performer does his bit, the circle of the minstrel men together with the band above them, is clearly discernible.

A train speeds out of the distance winding along the shores of a river. The scenic beauty of the river stretches forth in a stunning panorama. The locomotive is of the same size as if the naked eye were viewing it. In this first experimental picture with the new rimping and pageantry have been touched.

Most of the stars of the Fox lot joined in "Happy Days" for the auspicious display of Grandeur film. They included Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers, Ann Pennington, William Collier, James J. Corbett, Edmund Lowe, Victor McLaglen, George Olsen, Charles Farrell, Dixie Lee, El Brendel, Sharon Lynn, Marjorie Hale, Tom Patricia, Warner Baxter and a dozen others.

This column reported yesterday at screens large enough for display of Grandeur pictures will soon be added to other large cities besides New York. It places an additional burden upon the harassed theater owner but, if it is successful, will spread like wildfire through the theaters of the world.

American talking movies are now being presented with American sound apparatus in such distant spots as India, Japan, New Zealand.

The Theater

In connection with the vague account published in this column yesterday regarding the new Grandeur film with which Fox is experimenting, David P. Senter comes through with a very timely review of the Grandeur presentation of "Happy Days" at the Roxy Theater in New York.

Senter reveals that the picture, Alaska, Colombia, Argentina and Brazil, Great Britain, France, Germany and the smaller nations of Europe are rapidly becoming dotted with talkie theaters. In all, more than 2,000 installations have been made abroad. In less than two years American English has become the most familiar language in the world.

Senter says the effect of the new device is more than a mere enlargement of a snap shot. It is as if the camera had been given two eyes instead of one. A half-dozen characters are shown in many scenes, each member of the group as clear as an etching.

A chain of chorus girls do their stuff without the photographic rimping noticeable in a standard sized screen. A minstrel show is the basis of the plot. As the performer does his bit, the circle of the minstrel men together with the band above them, is clearly discernible.

A train speeds out of the distance winding along the shores of a river. The scenic beauty of the ever stretches forth in a stunning panorama. The locomotive is of the same size as if the naked eye were viewing it. In this first experimental picture with the new size of screen, the possibilities in groupings and pageantry have been touched.

Most of the stars of the Fox lot joined in "Happy Days" for the auspicious display of Grandeur film. They included Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers, Ann Pennington, William Collier, James J. Corbett, Edmund Lowe, Victor McLaglen, George Olsen, Charles Farrell, Dixie Lee, El Brendel, Sharon Lynn, Marjorie White, Tom Patricola, Warner Baxter and a dozen others.

American World War veterans, dressed in German soldier uniforms, play the part of German soldiers in the film version of "All Quiet on the Western Front". How tempus does fugit.

Twenty Years '10- Ago -'30

Mr. C. L. Jobe has arrived home from Cleveland where he spent several days on business. George Blackburn has joined the Prof. Colvin Show Company and is playing in Hamilton this week.

A serious accident almost occurred Wednesday morning when a runaway horse attached to a sleigh came near crashing into the large plate glass window of the offices of the S. B. LeSourd and Co. Prof. W. R. McChesney, Cedarville College, conducted the devotional service at the third bi-monthly meeting of the Greene County Teachers' Association, held in the McKinley auditorium.

WORLD FAMOUS WANDERER KNOWN AS A. NO. 1. WILL LECTURE HERE SUNDAY

LEON Ray Livingston, traveler, author and orator, well-known for years as a hobo under the tramp symbol of "A. No. 1", will lecture at the First M. E. Church here Sunday evening under auspices of the Xenia Ministerial Association.

Livingston will speak on the subject: "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" and is said to have an interesting and instructive message both for parents and for young people who feel the wanderlust.

His lecture will include the gripping story of his own wanderings during which he roamed 520,000 miles at a total cost of $7.61 until a happy marriage took him from the open road and turned him into a more substantial life. He points out that 200,000 boys run away every year, of whom 35,000 continue as worthless rovers while annually 80,000 girls disappear and 40,000 never return to their parents.

The menace of the wanderlust among girls, who are hitchhiking over the country in a fad that started since the war, is part of his message.

Livingston left his home in 1883 at the age of 11 and until he was 41 he clung to the "roads", covering this country,

"A. NO. 1"

Europe, South America, Alaska and Asia. His famous symbol "A. No. 1" may still be found carved on painted on water tanks and railroad stations all over the world. Since his marriage he has devoted his time to lecturing in the hope of diverting youngsters from their desire to leave home and wander.

Introducing a "very remarkable teller"—Charlie Farrell.

Is one of the few Puritans in Hollywood. Born at Walpole, Mass., on August 9, 1903. Educated in the public schools of Cape Cod and Boston University.

Was usher in his father's picture house at Onset Bay during summer vacations.

Saw William S. Hart in a picture and boasted that he could emulate him on the screen. His bluff was called so he quit college to give the westerner a run for his reputation.

Meets Our Mary—And How! Through the efforts of Mrs. Theodore Roberts was hooked on vaudeville tour. Arrived in Los Angeles and made a bee line for Hollywood. Landed much nearer the broad line.

A few weeks later held Mary Pickford in his arms. Was the extra chosen to carry her out of a scene in "Rosita".

Went to Frank Borzage to recommend a friend for part of Chico in "Seventh Heaven." Invited to play it himself.

Likes to Shadow Box No matter what time he retires, is up promptly at 9 o'clock every morning. Never misses his shadow boxing and daily dozen on arising. Weighs 175 "in the flesh."

Signs all his checks Charles David Farrell. Used to answer to nickname of "Buster."

Never combs his hair because it is that much effort wasted. His cowlicks refuse to stay put.

Has a passion for shell food of any kind. Always includes oysters in his menu and has been known to consume six portions of clam broth at one sitting.

Still gets a thrill out of meeting celebrities. Confesses that he cannot talk to Gloria Swanson without getting fussed.

Lives in bachelor solitude near the Richard A. Arns at Taluka Lake. Designed home himself along Cape Cod architectural lines and furnished it in Old Colonial style throughout.

Claims he won't marry for several years to come. But that doesn't prevent him from having pictures of Virginia Valli scattered generously about.

Is still waiting to meet William S. Hart. Wants to tell him that he is a good actor, too.

question of a Mediterranean pact, reported to have been demanded by France, should be left to the regular diplomatic channels, particularly in view of the fact that a number of Mediterranean powers are not represented at the London conference.

Regarding the suggestion that the conference discuss freedom of the seas the communiqué sets forth:

"There has been no change in the situation in that respect since the prime minister made a statement in the house of common that a general understanding concerning freedom of the seas should not be raised as it involved questions outside the scope of the conference."

The communiqué followed an official denial through Premier MacDonald's secretary of a story in the London Daily Express stating the conference had failed completely.

Assuming that the new French delegation will arrive here tomorrow night, Premier MacDonald today called a meeting of the heads of the delegations for Thursday morning.

ACCUSE MANSFIELD JAIL AUTHORITIES OF LAX TREATMENT

tice agent in Mansfield last week following rumors of privileges which were being given to John J. Schleimer and Sam Cohen, convicted Cleveland bootleggers.

Stories that are said to have reached the ears of the department of justice agent are alleged to have pictured Mansfield jail authorities as "good-time charleys" to the prisoners. A deputy sheriff, according to one story, frequently escorted Schleimer and Cohen to a roadhouse, to speakeasies and beer flats, and even to the theater.

Other stories, it was reported, alleged that the deputy sheriff would accompany his prisoners to a bowling alley where they would all join in a game. Sometimes, according to the allegations, a friend of the convicts would drop down from Cleveland and join the parties. Schleimer and Cohen were released from the prison last February 8, it was understood, their sentences having been shortened "for good behavior."

The two men were originally sentenced to the Dayton workhouse. They were transferred to the Mansfield jail, however, when it was charged that favors had been granted them in the Dayton institution.

NINETEEN TESTIFY AT PUBLIC HEARING ON AUTO ACCIDENT

passed under the railroad bridge. Galliger said he slowed down to about five miles an hour when he saw a train approaching and that he swerved to the right in a vain attempt to avoid the truck, the front end of which crashed into the left front of the roadster. His own car was about seven feet out from the curb when the accident occurred, he said.

That the fire truck, after clearing the crossing in safety ahead of the train, veered sharply to the right in an apparent effort to get back to its own side of the street, was the high light of the testimony of the Rev. Ralph Moon, Chestnut St., who with his wife and boy were hurrying to practice for a Christmas entertainment.

They ran across the crossing and were on the north side about in front of the entrance to the Pennsylvania freight yard walking north on the sidewalk. The minister said the rear end of the truck swung around and almost hit him, the ladders passing just over his head while some other part of the truck grazed him. He judged that the truck was being driven at a high rate of speed at the time. Mrs. Moon, who also testified, estimated the speed of the truck as terrific.

Mrs. Yeakley, who was walking north on the west side of the street was on the south side of the crossing and estimated the truck was traveling thirty-five or forty miles an hour. She said she heard the train whistle for the crossing long before it reached it. A Mr. Marsden, who said he was on the north side of the crossing walking north on the east side of the street, testified the roadster had come to a complete stop, while Mrs. Ed Lynch, living on the west side of the street in the first house on the south side of the crossing, declared she looked through a window and saw the accident. She was unable to judge the speed of the truck but said it angled across to the right after passing over the crossing.

Testifying in his own defense, Lieut. Dice, driver of the truck, asserted he was driving down the Detroit St. hill at a speed not exceeding twenty-five miles an hour and that he approached the crossing, in his opinion, cautiously.

"I had looked through an open space in the rear of a grocery at the southeast corner of the Detroit St. and Home Ave. intersection, and saw no train," he said. "We were about twenty-five feet from the tracks when I first saw the locomotive. I was watching for a train but heard no whistle. I thought of stopping, but realizing the slippery condition of the streets, did what I thought was the next best thing for the apparatus and men."

"I swung to the left and after the rear wheels of the truck got by the tracks, I started to swing back and also began to apply the brakes."

Lieut. Dice declared that he observed the Galliger auto approaching on the opposite side of the crossing but said he believed it was too far away to be in danger. He said that he angled the truck to the right and that the roadster turned in the same direction. Then he swerved to the left and said the auto, also trying to avert a collision, did the same. When he veered to the right again, the roadster also turned to the south-east, and a collision was unavoidable, he testified.

The lieutenant also maintained that the left front wheel of the Galliger machine was at a point in the street where the old traction car tracks used to be, about three feet off center, or, according to his own measurements, about twenty-five feet from the west curb.

Fire Chief William Hanifan, who was on a seat beside the driver, said he did not look in either direction to see if a train was coming, but relied on the driver.

Testimony of seven other firemen, including Captain Herman Fisher, who was standing beside the front seat of the truck; Clayton Swartz, John Haller and Anthony Jones, pipemen, who were standing on the rear step; Ola Woolary, regular fireman, and Lloyd Downey, extra fireman, who were on the ladder truck trailing the Seagrave, and Ralph Briley, ex-

Modern Vaporizing Ointment Fast
Replacing Old-Time Internal Remedies

A generation ago, it was the custom to give large doses of internal medicines for colds and almost every human ailment. Then, a North Carolina pharmacist originated Vicks VapoRub, the modern method of treating colds without "dosing." Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

As more and more people adopted this modern external treatment, the fame of Vicks spread until today it is the standby for colds—adults as well as children's—in over 60 countries.

This ever-increasing demand is shown in the figures of the familiar Vicks slogan. Made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," and later raised to "21 Million," these figures, too, have been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly," in the United States alone.

tra fireman, who was driving his own auto in the rear of the ladder truck, bore out generally the statement of Lieut. Dice that the Seagrave was not exceeding twenty-five miles an hour when it approached the crossing.

Attorney W. A. Miller questioned the witnesses in his capacity as city solicitor, and Attorney C. L. Darlington and F. L. Johnson, counsel for the injured girls, stressed the fact that regardless of the speed of the fire truck, the driver was negligent because the apparatus was not under control, otherwise Lieut. Dice would have been able to bring the truck to a stop in time without hitting the train and without swerving to the wrong side of the street speeding across in front of train.
